From Delhi I had sent you a serialized article — Portrait of a Genius — which contained a historical account of the Progressive Artists' Group and its members. I had sent the material c/o Kekoo Gandhi soon after I met you in Bombay, but Kekoo was behaving oddly, obviously he was going through the male menopause, so I don't know if you received the article at all.

I was in Paris last month and I mailed you a card in which you are mentioned in the piece I wrote <sup>in it.</sup> I have also mentioned you in the enclosed piece on "Cultural Imperialism" among a list of Indian artists who are in my view the most outstanding in the world today.
